

Motivation and Delegation – Performance Management

Duration: 1 day

This workshop will help you to develop techniques to manage the operation and your staff and enable you to stop doing it all yourself. It will look at the arts of both delegation and motivation as well as the skills, attributes and competences required by a manager.

Many business managers today are not aware of the effects that motivation can (and does) have on their business, and it is therefore important they learn and understand the factors that determine positive motivation in the workplace.

If you can encourage, persuade or develop your people in such ways as to improve their effectiveness, then you have successfully motivated them. This staff motivation workshop is designed to help managers understand what is required to motivate others and to understand and develop their own motivational techniques.
